Second, we disagree with the district court's view that this matter should have been dismissed because the district court lacked jurisdiction over the counterclaim. The district court cannot exceed its jurisdiction when it decides the merits of a dispute; it can only decide those that were brought before it. See Corley v. Rosewood Care Center, Inc. of Peoria, 388 F.3d 990, 1001 (7th Cir. 2004). It did not have jurisdiction to consider the merits of A.G.'s counterclaim, however, because that dispute was never presented to the arbitrator. The one dispute that the arbitrator heard, however, was A.G.'s claim that it had been wrongfully discharged. The district court held that the arbitrator's determination in A.G.'s
